ENJOYS HIS CLARET PUNCH.

Shakes Hands With Visitors, Gives Impersonations of Mr. Dooley and Mrs. Nation and Almost Talks.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Oct. 4 Desc. the man ape, made his New York debut in the afternoon at the Victoria Hotel, in the presence of at the Victoria Hetel, in the presence of ten physicians rueduc reporters and a humbers. He is a beby, according to his friend and instructor. Captain de Lancler, aithough an infast sufficiently cophisticated to drink clares punch and to wear a dress suit with more or less grace. He is "lyyens old, and he has a gold tooth with a diamond in it. Each talks in high-caste chimpainnee. If he had the opportunity he would sell his buthright for a limite of claret. He appeared in a dress sight of the same cut as that affected by his trainer, for both have visited Chicago. He was a little drewsy at him, a fact which, Mr. Lauis, B. Beck, his director general, explained, was due to the fact that he had recently come from Phisadelphia.

In appearance East is strangely haman, The chimpance has the same number of house as a man als features, with the exception of the ness, which is rudimentar, are fairly well developed. His forehead is enusually high for an animal, and the fact that he has brain power was demonstrated by many tricks and fears which he per-formed. His nearness to the human family was shown by his appreciation of stimu-lants and by the longing glances which he lants and by the longing glances which he bestowed upon cigars and cigarettes. BUHLT TO WALK EMECT. Essui is about four feet high and walks practically erect. The physicians who examined his knees said that the formation of the patella indicated that he was intended to walk in an upright attitude. He sai in a chah, whispered confidential remarks to his keeper, at a banana with a knife and fork, peured out his ten and spoiled the decoction of the fragrant herb with sugar and cream in the most approved Occidental style. The creature used a napkin, placed his knife and fork methadically up his plate when he had fork methodically on his place when he had finished his repost, and then picked his tech with his clow on the table, just as some men do in boarding-houses. Of the company which attended his reception yesterday a humorist seemed most to impress how. He struck the purveyor of fun upon his ample waisteout and repeated the blows with both hands chuckling all the while, until the man was constrained to get out of raing. The remark that Esau had gold his birthright for a mess of potash is said to have precipitated this attack.

TASTE FOR CLARET. TASTE FOR CLARET.

TASTE FOR CLARRY.

Much distress was experienced by a member of the medical profession when he saw the chimpannee drink claret punch with every evidence of enjoyment.

"I perceive," said he to the Captain, "that you are teaching him the use of two had adjuncts of civilization—rum and toothpicks. I suggest that cold water is sufficient.

"The fact is," replied the Captain, "that he needs a little stimulant of a mild kind in this climate. I shall not permit him to fill a drunkard's grave."

Ensu left his chair and hastened to a table, where there was a large howl of panch, and held up a cup for a supply of the liquid. He received about two tenspoontule, which he drank in haste. He then gave costume impersonations of Mr. Dooley and Mrs. Carris Nation.

SHOWS HIS DISLIKES.

After his performance he held an aftermon tea and reception. Essus shook hands with all, with the exception of two or three persons whom he beened to dislike at first sight. When the humorist took a seat by the chimpanzer's chair Essus devoted himself exclusively to him. He patted the respiendent waistoust, placed his atms around the man's neck stroked his hair, stapped him on the shoulder, and occasionally spoke volubly in the similar patois. When his new acquaintance rose to depart Essus shook hands with him several times and waved farewell. It is the belief of the Captain that Essus can be taught to speak English in time.
